1. Introduction

Currently, the fashion industry plays an influential role in many countries. Neckline is an important part for a garment. The top edge of a garment that is surrounding the neck is called neckline. It refers to the total line between all of the layers of clothing and the neck and shoulders of a person. The neckline is primarily a style line above the waistline [1]. A perfect neckline can make someone charm, smarter. There is some main factor that defines someone’s neckline. Those are body shape, bust, décolleté line, face, neck, shoulder [2]. Neckline plays a vital role in every costume. In this research secondary data is used. The research was conducted to show a development of neckline fashion from ancient period to till now.

5. Methodology

The research was designed to collect information from Internet, books, journal. It is very important to our research to collect data from literature review. The main methodology of our research is to collect neckline history and the modern implementation. The study based secondary data. Our research focused on the changes of necklines through the passage of era. The research intended to confine the current condition of using necklines for making design in fashion industry.

5.1. Mesopotamia

In Mesopotamia most of the women used V necks and round neckline to their daily wear. We can see from Figure 1 that the necklines is repeated in modern dress also. V neck is used because of their draped garments. Actually V and round neckline is common in almost all civilization. Now a day, we can seen the huge implementation of round and V neck in our modern attire.

6. Results

There are many reasons for changing the fashion of necklines through the passage of time. Here we can see the implementation of necklines of ancient time to modern fashion like Mesopotamia to 1990 [98]. Some necklines repeated after 20 or 40 years. This fashion repeated in a cyclic process. Modern time neckline fashion is based on ancient fashion. Those are the root or base of fashion. New generation always wants something new, trendy and fashionable. So it is important to collect and reuse the necklines in modern time. So that new generation can know about their past history and fashion properly.

7. Conclusion

A country can’t develop without its past. Every country holds its own culture, history, tradition for development.
and empowerment. So it is necessary to know about the fashion of necklines of ancient period to modern time and use them properly to current trend. It’s good to modernize fashion & trend but still have to stick the glorious past history. In this research we can see that the balancing of neckline in both ancient & modern time.

8. Recommendation

The fashion world has a long, inspiring and various artistic histories. This research briefly discussed the past & present condition of neckline and requirement to develop this sector and to face the next challenge. So, to face the future challenge of fashion industry need to develop fashion business. The research will provide the talented resources of neckline fashion to develop this sector. The scope of this study is to clear vision to make Trends change and often reflect the overall sentiment of culture. Taking inspiration from both modern and historical fashion can be a great way to fusion something new. To understand what good design is and why it is important & also to cultivate others interest to this sector is the main purpose of this research.
